

Positive Actions at Mark Twain

In hallways & stairways, Mark Twain students are:

Caring by looking at other's work and walking quietly,
Knowledgeable that others are working,
Principled by going directly to our destination.

In the cafeteria, Mark Twain students are:

Balanced in our food choices,
Communicators by listening to classmates & talking with "inside" voices,
Caring by recycling items, composting fruits & vegetables, & tossing trash.

In the restrooms, Mark Twain students are:

Knowledgeable by washing hands with soap,
Caring by tossing in trash the used paper towels,
Principled by rejoining class quickly and quietly.

During assemblies, Mark Twain students are:

Principled by following teachers' directions & respecting performers' effort,
Knowledgeable by practicing concert manners,
Caring by sitting appropriately.

On the playground, Mark Twain students are:

Reflective by winning and losing with positive attitudes,
Caring by treating others the way you want to be treated,
Balanced by knowing your limits,
Risk-takers by including all.

In the specials classrooms, Mark Twain students are:

Open-minded by learning in different situations,
Inquirers by asking questions,
Risk-takers by trying something new.

In the library, Mark Twain students are:

Thinkers by making appropriate decisions,
Inquirers by nurturing our curiosity and developing a love of learning,
Communicators by collaborating effectively and listening carefully.
